Senior Micro Frontend Angular Engineer – Product

Description

As a Micro Frontend Angular Engineer, your role is crucial in shaping our innovative SaaS platform to ensure its user-friendliness and accessibility. By focusing on user interface performance and design consistency, nurturing team growth, prioritizing the product, and fostering knowledge sharing, you will drive innovation and guarantee a top-tier user experience. Your work will directly influence the look and feel of our product, making it more intuitive and enjoyable for our customers. Your contribution will be vital to our continued success.

THIS IS YOU:

- Extensive experience with Angular and TypeScript. You are comfortable with the ins and outs of these technologies or related, from building and deploying applications to debugging and optimizing performance.
- A passion for shipping. Bonus points for Trunk Based Development. CI/CD is your default. Putting code live every day is standard practice.
- Familiarity with module federation and cloud environments. You understand how to build and deploy micro frontends using module federationand how to optimize performance and scalability in cloud
- Expertise in developing and maintaining component libraries. You have experience in building and maintaining component libraries that can be used across multiple applications, ensuring consistency, and reducing development time.
- User-centric approach to frontend development. You prioritize user needs and preferences when developing front-end interfaces, working closely with product designers to create intuitive and engaging user experiences. Attention to the details when implementing UI.
- A "Best tool for the job" mentality. You are not a zealot and know that having a hammer does not make everything a nail. You are not afraid to try something new and know how to build consensus and knowledge in the team for new tech and concepts.
- Excellent English communication skills. You can naturally work with people from different backgrounds, both technical and non-technical. You are comfortable defending your ideas and challenging others. People enjoy working and debating with you.'
